01 / THE FIRST IMPRESSION

Your two references. One EVR identity.

Light, welcoming. Media-led. Clearly EVR.

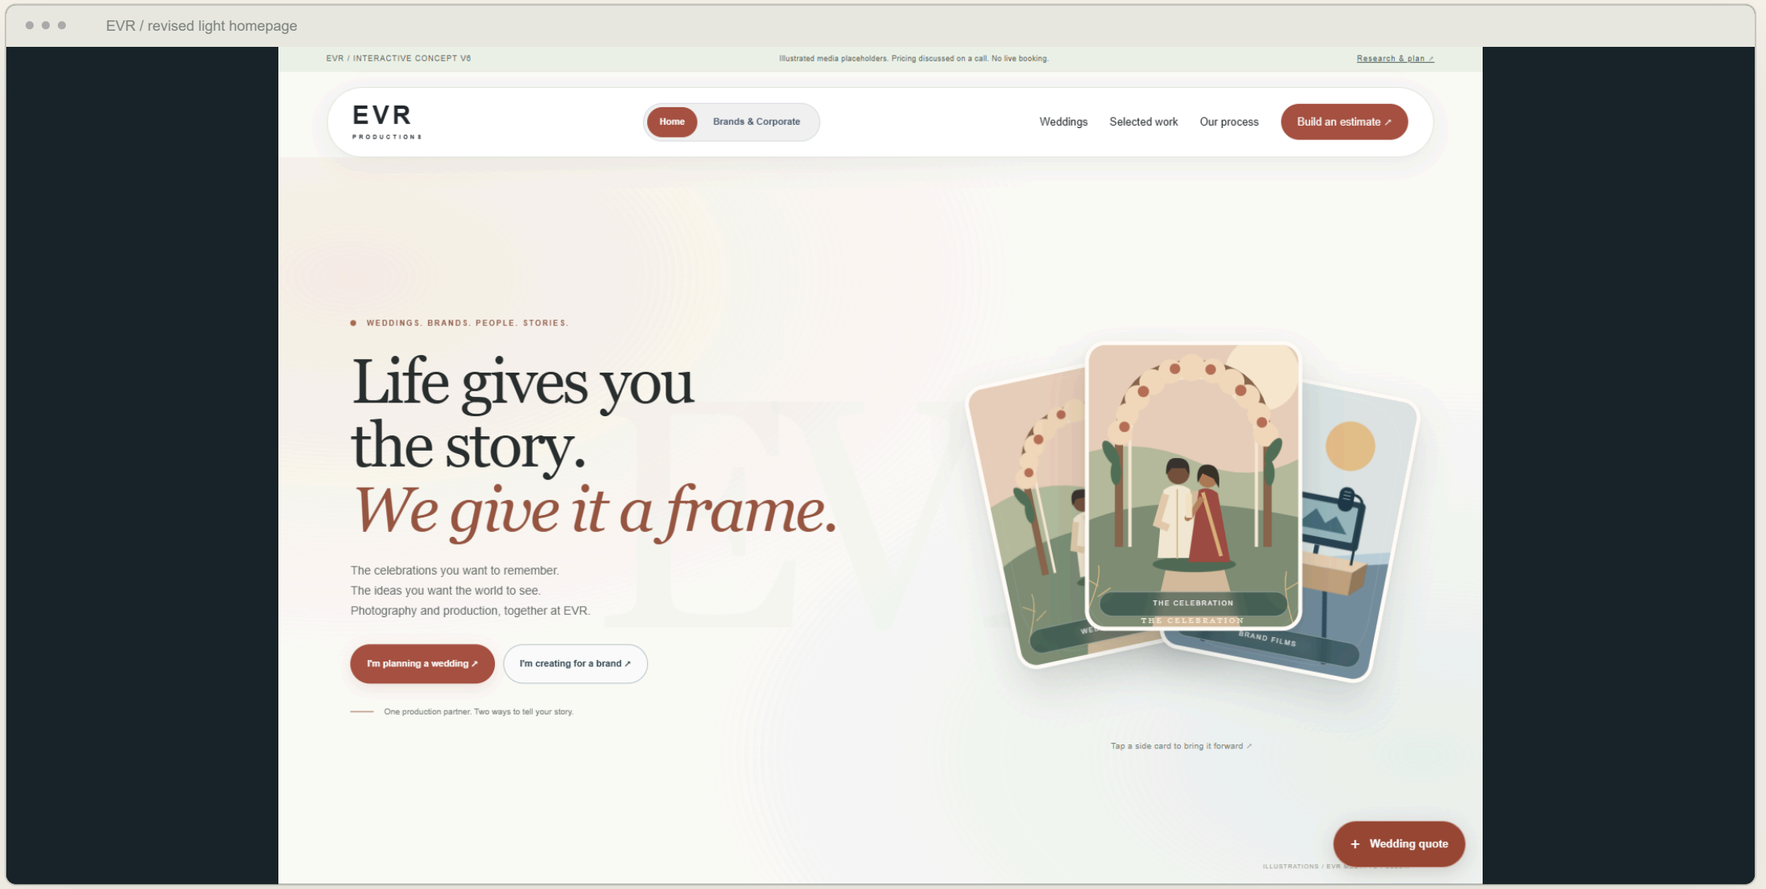

A revised direction informed by both public websites, rather than the earlier dark studio concept.

01 The Big Day: wedding storytelling, process and quote discovery.

02 GCS: service clarity, reels and a business-focused brief.

03 EVR: two service paths, one original brand experience.

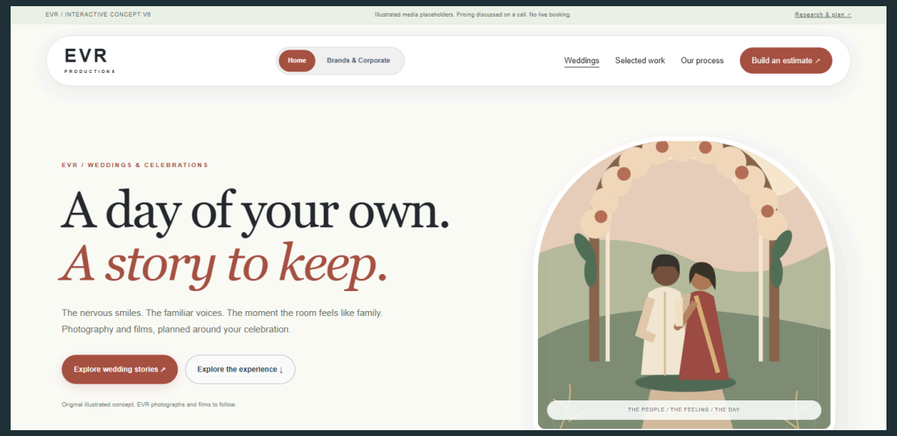

Original illustration placeholders, not copied reference photography. Replace with EVR-approved media.

02 / THE RIGHT STORY FOR THE RIGHT CUSTOMER

Same identity. Different conversations.

Wedding emotion and business clarity, without maintaining two separate websites.

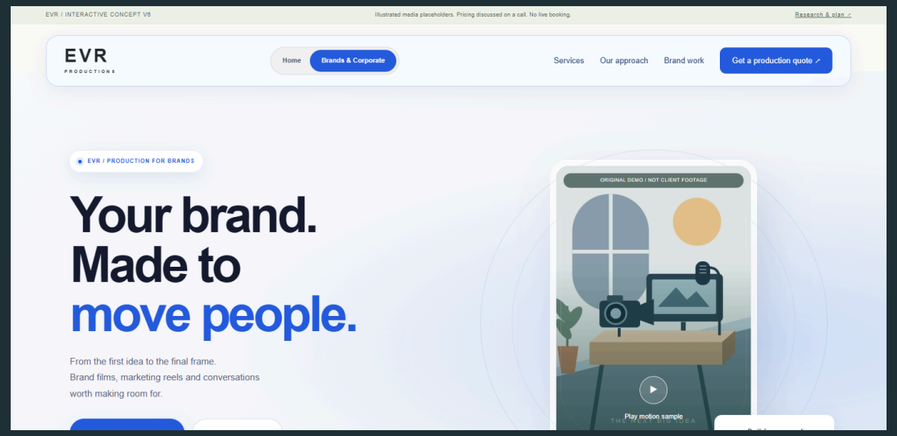

Weddings

Photography, films and celebrations.

Warm imagery. Personal storytelling.

Action: Plan your wedding coverage.

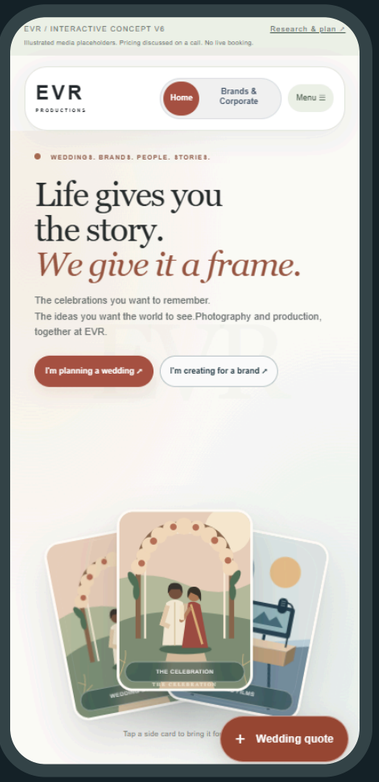

Brands & corporate

Brand films, reels, YouTube and podcasts.

Clear scope. Relevant production work.

Action: Discuss your production.

03 / A PUBLIC QUOTATION PATH

Shape the shoot. See the starting point.

The reference has a public builder. Our concept does too.

Customers explore a simple indicative estimate, then send requirements for EVR to confirm the final scope and price.

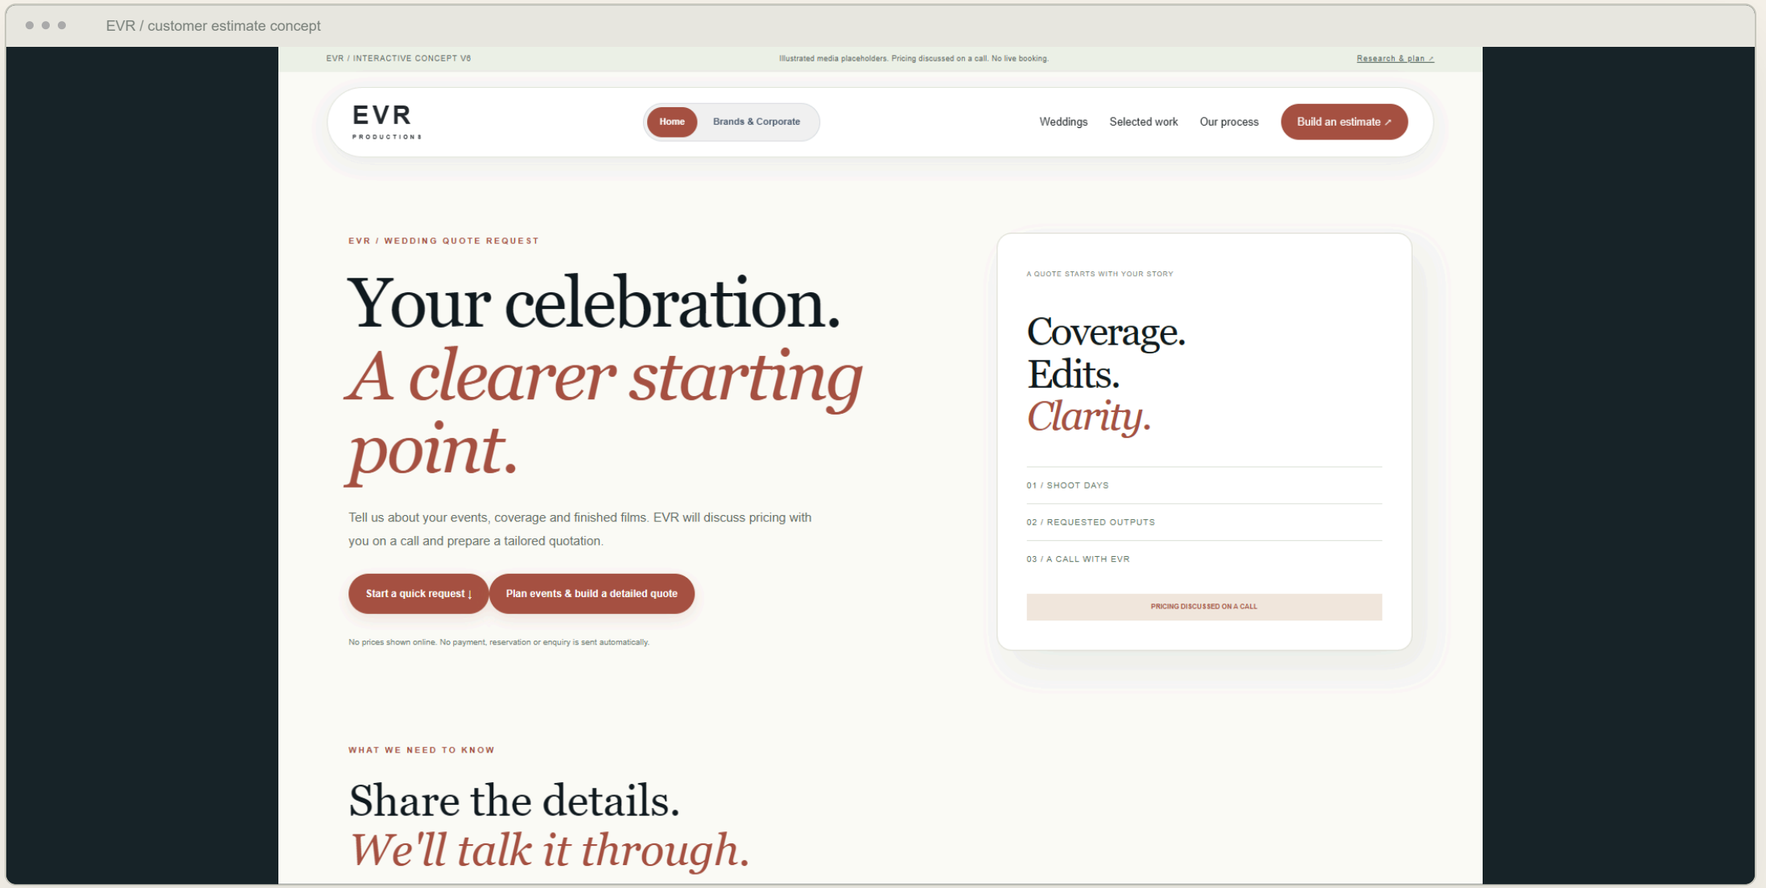

Choose service → Adjust coverage →

Review estimate → Request confirmation

A proposed hybrid model

Public estimate + staff-approved quotation. Final rates, rule complexity and scope need approval.

Sample arithmetic only. No real booking, payment or enquiry submission. Custom projects require review.

04 / THE FEATURE THAT SAVES REPEATED WORK

From a brief to a branded quotation.

A practical studio behind the showcase.

Wedding and corporate templates bring services, quantities, rates and deliverables into one clear workflow.

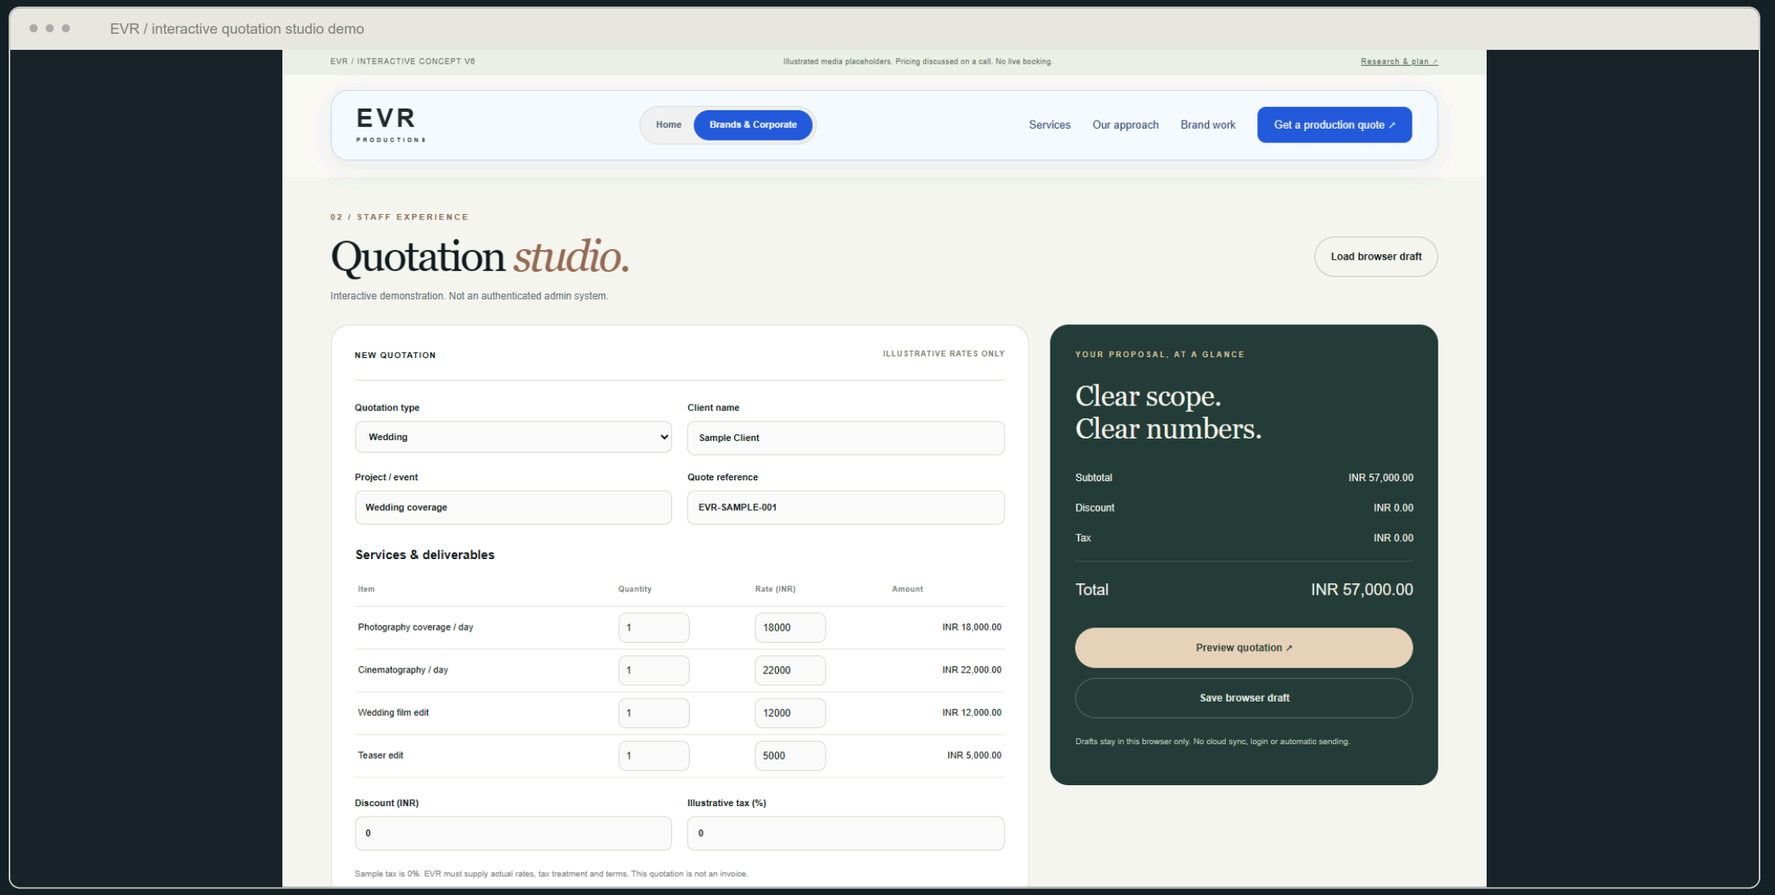

01 Choose the quotation type.

02 Adjust services and quantities.

03 Review the total and preview the PDF.

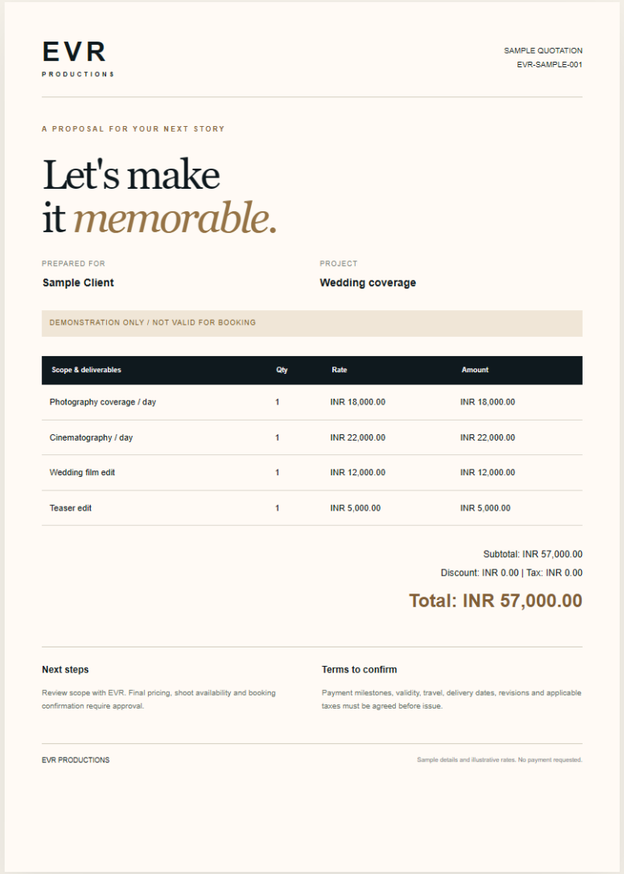

04 Save and reopen quotations in the proposed production system.

Demo: live calculations and one browser-local draft. Proposed production scope: authenticated access, permanent storage and historical rate preservation.

05 / A PROFESSIONAL FINISH

A clear proposal. Without hidden scope.
